Celebrity chef, author and restaurateur Vivian Howard, who previously hosted the award-winning series A CHEF’S LIFE, returns to PBS in SOMEWHERE SOUTH. The new six-part series explores dishes that are uniting cultures and creating new traditions across the American South.

“Shooting SOMEWHERE SOUTH has made me look at what we call Southern food with a new set of spectacles,” says Howard. “The home kitchens I learn in, the stories I hear people share, the food I watch them make — it has lit a fresh fire under me,” Vivian says. “I’m excited that, as Southerners, we can tell these complex stories through food and culture, and not shy away from our past or present.”

THE WORLD IS WAITING!

Last November, I joined eighteen APT supporters on an 11-day trip to England and France to see Memorials of World War II, one of the great trips Collette Vacations puts together for us. The group that I went with included a college professor, retired teachers, a museum director, a banker and an aircraft technician, among others. We had a terrific time seeing the sights and sharing perspectives. Our Collette tour director, Jeff, was very good at his job, and we enjoyed amazing food and incredible sites. Of course, we were all tremendously moved as we visited the places where Americans spilled their blood to liberate the world from tyranny.

If you’re ready to go exploring with a great group of people, join APT and Collette. Learn about this year’s trips at aptv.org/travel or call Member Services at 1-800-239-5233.
